AROUND THE CLUB

Hello all

Where has this past year gone, as they say, times flies when you are having fun!

Our last jam for the year held on 25th November, was a lot of fun, I hope those people who scored a lucky door prize, enjoy your gifts from the Blues Club. Please note there is no jam in December, we plan to be back in January as usual.

We also bode farewell to Mein Host, Bruce Potter, who leaves the Royal Oak after 42 years, that must surely be a record and we whole-heartedly thank Bruce and his amazing staff (past and present) for all his/their support of the Launceston Blues Club over the years.

On 4th December the new owner moves in and I would like to welcome Wendy Robbins to the Royal Oak family and to the Blues Clues Club happenings. Wendy informs me that it will be all business as usual, so I look forward to establishing/maintaining as strong a relationship between her good self and the LBC as we had with Bruce.

There are so many gigs and events coming up, so please grab a coffee, beer or whatever is your "poison" and sit back and read all about what's happening during December and beyond, in Tasmania and interstate. Of course there will be many more things happening, I have included the ones I think may be of interest to some of you. There are some links included to web pages so you can get more information of any events. Also remember that "Google is your friend" to help you find lots of information about events.

The Forth Valley Blues Festival is all systems go, with Friday night back at the pub (also ticketed) and Saturday on the Festival grounds, with Chain headlining, plus lots of other cool bands. Hope to have some special ticket news for LBC members soon.

Those of you who know me, know that I enjoying going to Blues on Broadbeach most years, our local band The Bad Dad Orchestra have just been announced to play there. To say I am excited is an understatement, being a fan since their inception. Not all bands performing are blues of course, as is the case with most festivals these days, they have had to include other genres to survive. The Bad Dads are up there in the first round announcement with the likes of Canned Heat, Eric Bibb and a swag of great acts (check poster inside), not a bad achievement for a band from Launceston. If you ever feel like a holiday on the Gold Coast, then venture up during festival time (16-19 May) and you get to see all these acts for free. Make sure to book accommodation early as it goes quickly in the Festival precinct. My next interstate Festival will be a trip to Goulburn NSW for the Australian Blues Music Festival in February, another great line-up of Australian blues.

On behalf of the Launceston Blues Club I would like to wish you all a happy and safe festive season.

Have a great month. Cheers Kaz

Blue Note Chit-Chat

Tanya Catelli interviews Jerome Hillier

TC: What attracted you to music and who are some of your favourite artists?

JH: I think a lot of the things that attracted me to music attracted a lot of people to music: the stories, the melodies and people expressing themselves on their chosen instruments. I like the hypnotic effect you get by listening to albums - getting lost in the words, songs, singing and playing. Later on, I was drawn to the sound of the electric guitar which is what made me want to pursue music. I find blues gives me more a chance to openly express myself. Some of my favourite guitars are Albert Collins, Jeff Healey and Robert Cray. I love their phrasing and the vocalesque sounds they bring to their instrument.

TC: Do you collaborate with others and what process do you use?

JH: I collaborate with others through mainly solo work, as it's just easier. It's definitely my favourite thing playing with others and seeing what people bring to the table and grooving with a good band. It's a matter of playing/jamming with others to find out if you have some common ground and musical chemistry that you would like to develop. I play in a couple of duos - The Hat and the Horn and the Whole Shebang. I played in the band Blue Monday and we won the blues playoffs around three years ago and played at the Forth Valley Blues Festival and Festivale.

TC: What is your favourite part about playing and creating music, your least favourite and why?

JH: I think just the way music makes you feel, it's a vehicle for expression and hopefully that rubs off on the people you are performing for.

It's obviously satisfying for both parties when you are able to engage with each other and enjoy music as one. I've never thought about my least favourite thing - maybe a guitar amplifier that breaks down on the night of the performance- thankfully doesn't happen too often, but it sure can raise your stress levels

TC: How did you get involved with the Launceston Blues Club?

JH: I got involved with the Launceston Blues Club through my love of the blues and a close second would be through Chris Bennett who owned the Foggy Mountain Music store. I would frequently explore the shop to see what new music Chris had discovered from blues artists from all over the world. Chris was very passionate about blues and very encouraging with any blues projects I was involved with. He introduced me to the Launceston Blues Club in its earlier years and I'm glad he did.

TC: Are there any other interesting things you'd like to add?

JH: I have an amazing collection of about 25 guitars. I get most of them built to specification and source their bits and pieces. I get Dave Dobson to put them together for me. I find it interesting how well some woods and electronics react to each other. A pink paisley guitar I own is a copy of Fener paisley. It features a warmoth neck and Harmonic Design pickups. My preferred choice of strings are D'Addario 10-46 and I like to match my outfits to my guitars.

Are you planning a trip to the USA? You may wish to include The Mississippi Blues Trail on your travel itinerary, it looks very interesting.

Welcome to the Mississippi Blues Trail, your unforgettable journey into the land that spawned the single most important root source of modern popular music. Whether you're a die-hard blues fan or a casual traveller in search of an interesting trip, you'll find facts you didn't know, places you've never seen, and you'll gain a new appreciation for the area that gave birth to the blues.

<http://www.msbluestrail.org/index.aspx>

The Mississippi Blues Trail markers tell stories through words and images of bluesmen and women and how the places where they lived and the times in which they existed—and continue to exist—influenced their music. The sites run the gamut from city streets to cotton fields, train depots to cemeteries, and clubs to churches. We have a lot to share, and it's just down the Mississippi Blues Trail.

Below is a link that lists where the many markers are located:

Museums Along the Trail

While you're following the Blues Trail, stop and visit other blues-related museums and areas of interest along the way. Please check with the facilities in advance to confirm opening dates and admission charges.
